

MORNING APPEAL.

Wednesday.....August 13, 1888.

FOR PRESIDENT,
BENJAMIN HARRISON
OF INDIANA.
FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
LEVI P. MORTON
OF NEW YORK.

NEVADA AND THE TARIFF.

A correspondent signing himself "Miner," in the Silver State says: The Carson APPEAL does not seem to know that there are now in this highly protected country thousands of miners working for less than $1 per day in New York, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio and Alabama in the highly protected coal and iron mines, where the miners are forced to trade at the company's stores and where it is not unusual to see posted in the offices of such mines the notice: "No cash paid for labor." Neither does the APPEAL seem to know that at the present time there is no restriction upon the immigration from free trade countries. We levy a tax upon the goods produced by European pauper laborers, but we admit the pauper laborers free, so that they at once enter into active competition with American laborers.

The APPEAL is fully aware of this sad state of affairs in the East, and also agrees with the correspondent that while we restrict the admission of foreign goods we should also shut down the gates against the influx of the foreign laborer. The fact that miners get but a dollar a day in Pennsylvania is not an argument against protection. Miners in free trade countries get even less than this.

The cause of the low wages is unquestionably the influx of foreign laborers who over-stock the labor market. These people are the class welcomed to this country by the Democratic State platform adopted by the Virginia City Convention. The low wages would be still lower were free trade to prevail. The coal would still be in demand, and the miners would be kept at work, but men employed in manufacturing establishments would be thrown out of employment and still further over-stock the labor market.

The correspondent seems to labor under the idea that Nevada would be more prosperous through a scarcity of silver, said scarcity enhancing the price. This is true in a measure, but if the whole United States would be so foolish as to send the bulk of its money to England to purchase goods instead of making them at home, does "Miner" suppose that the advance in silver by reason of its scarcity would not be more than offset by the general hard times which would prevail everywhere? We do not need to send our silver to England and India to appreciate its value. We can do a good deal better by giving the people what they have long demanded, i. e., the unrestricted free coinage of silver, and this can only be accomplished by restoring the Republican party to power.

We are not obliged to sacrifice the other industries of our country by resorting to free trade, because the industries of America, if protected and allowed to grow in connection with her rapidly developed natural resources, will absorb all the silver produced in this country. The low price of silver now is due solely to the war made upon it in the interests of Wall Street by President Cleveland and the Democratic party. If a scarcity of silver was the one desirable thing to have it could perhaps be better accomplished by shutting down the mines entirely, a course which even the "Miner" corresponding with the Silver State would hardly advocate.

The waters in Stillwater and Old River, Churchill county, have nearly dried up, but the ranchers say they will cut about the same amount of hay and grain as there is more land under cultivation than there has been there before.
